

Dr Linda van Deventer – Dermatologist

Hair loss is also known as alopecia.

- Alopecia may be localised or widespread.
- It can affect the scalp or other parts of the body.
- There may be areas of skin that are completely bald.
- There may be associated skin disease or scarring.
- Some forms of alopecia may be associated with an underlying medical problem.
- Having alopecia may be devastating and can affect anyone.

When to see a Dermatologist?

It is advisable to see your Dermatologist as soon as possible if you suspect that you may have alopecia.

Your Dermatologist will help to determine the cause and treatment options for your hair loss.

EARLY treatment by a dermatologist can prevent PERMANENT hair loss.
